

ABSTRACT

The unity of the civilisation of Southern Albania (Northern Epirus) with the rest of Northern-Northwestern Greece has always been obvious and highlighted by all travellers and scientists as well.

There is no clear picture of the number of monuments. Many of them were victimised by the 'cultural revolution' of Enver Hoxha and their efforts to obscure scientific truth, however, the final result was notable to make historical reality disappear.

The acceptance of the cultural role of Hellenism as well as Orthodoxy, which contributed to the formation of Albania's profile, which are hypernational factors in their long history, will definitely help the two neighbouring nations to overcome the hurdle of nationalistic conflicts.
